

Third Haverford Meeting on Behavioral and Experimental Economics

The conference aims to bring together Mid-Atlantic behavioral and experimental economists. Researchers engaged in experimental, theoretical, or empirical work are encouraged to contribute. Researchers in all stages of their career are encouraged to apply.

This one-day conference will be hosted at Haverford College on Saturday October 3, 2015

Keynote speaker: Guillaume Fréchet (New York University)

Haverford College is easily accessible via car or train from Philadelphia. The Haverford train station is a 19 minute ride from Philadelphia's 30th Street Station on the SEPTA Paoli-Thorndale Regional Rail line.

We request a $40 registration fee, which includes dinner. (The registration fee without dinner is $20.) The conference is free for non-presenting students.

Researchers interested in participating in the meeting should send a completed paper or an abstract to: beemagroup@gmail.com

Deadline for submission: August 28, 2015

(Due to unusually tight space constraints this year, applicants are encouraged to apply as soon as possible.)

Preliminary schedule available: September 4, 2015

The conference is organized by BEEMA. For more information on BEEMA, see: <http://crab.rutgers.edu/~smithj/BEEMA.htm>
